

It Is Back-To-School Time For Your Retirement Plan

T. BRIAN HAYES

It is August, and that means it is back-to-school time. But back-to-school time is not just for kids in school anymore. There are so many changes in the financial and economic arena each and every year, especially this year and in the coming years. In order to keep your retirement plan updated, accurate and maximized at all times, you simply have to make sure you go 'back to school' to stay educated and informed. So it is back-to-school time for your retirement plan.

As you know, time does not stop and changes in the financial and economic arena happen all the time. Every year there are tax law changes, interest rate changes, changes in the economy, and changes in the financial markets. With that being said, retirement planning never ends. In fact, there have been many changes recently in rules, laws, taxes and regulations, and many more are coming. Thus, you need to be knowledgeable about all these changes so you can make the proper and strategic adjustments to your retirement plan every year to keep your planning up to date, accurate and in line with your specific goals, objectives, and desires.

There is a college style retirement education course coming to Indianapolis this August. This is a six-hour course taught over two days (3 hours each day) that covers all areas of retirement education, such as income planning, health care in retirement (Medicare, Medicare supplements and long term care), Social Security, taxation in retirement, estate planning (including wills and trusts) and many more subjects including retirement rule and law changes from the Secure and Cares Act.

This course is being conducted by The Prepare Institute (www.theprepareinstitute.org), which is a national 501(c)(3) non-profit educational institution. These retirement planning courses are taught on college campus throughout the country. The course is being conducted locally at Indiana Wesleyan University – Indianapolis North Campus, on Tuesday evenings, August 20th and 27th from 6 to 9 p.m., and Thursday evenings, August 22nd and 29th from 6 to 9 p.m.

This course is strictly educational, noncommercial and unbiased. No specific financial products will be discussed. Course tuition is $49, which includes a course workbook, taxation guide, estate planning organizer and other class materials.
